REPUBLICAN STATE TICKET

FOR STATE TREASURER

MATTHEW QUAY

Of Beaver County

FOR SURVEYOR GENERAL

DANIEL MARTIN

Of Hamilton Township

IF THERE IS ANY REPUBLICAN WHO HAS NOT PAID A STATE OR COUNTY TAX WITHIN TWO YEARS HE OUGHT TO DO SO AT ONCE IF HE IS NOT ABLE TO PAY ALL HE OWES HE CAN PAY SOME PART OF IT AND BE ENTITLED TO A RECEIPT AND A VOTE. IF HE IS ABLE TO PAY AND WILL NOT PAY HE HAS NO BUSINESS TO VOTE AND HIS VOTE WILL BE REJECTED IF OFFERED.

DEMOCRATS say that the increase of taxation under the present administration is due to the fact that the Republicans left a large surplus in the treasury. Why then are they now proposing to increase the taxation? If the surplus was so large why not reduce the taxation? Democratic papers contain what they say is the truth about the condition of the country, and particularly about the condition of the people. Why not believe them?

ATTORNEY GENERAL KIRKPATRICK has decided that the Auditor General cannot issue a warrant for the payment of the salary of a Deputy Attorney General who has been appointed by the Governor to fill a vacancy, but who has not been confirmed by the Senate. The Governor has appointed a number of Deputy Attorney Generals to fill vacancies, and the Auditor General will refuse to issue warrants for their salaries.

THE Democratic State Committee has issued a circular to the Democratic voters of Pennsylvania, in which they say that the Democratic party has been "steadily growing in power and influence" since 1880. The Democratic party has been steadily growing in power and influence since 1860, when it was overwhelmingly defeated in Pennsylvania. It has been steadily growing in power and influence ever since the Republican party came into power. It has been steadily growing in power and influence ever since the Republican party began to reduce the public debt. It has been steadily growing in power and influence ever since the Republican party began to reduce the taxation. It has been steadily growing in power and influence ever since the Republican party began to increase the wages of labor. It has been steadily growing in power and influence ever since the Republican party began to increase the prosperity of the country. It has been steadily growing in power and influence ever since the Republican party began to increase the happiness of the people. It has been steadily growing in power and influence ever since the Republican party began to increase the intelligence of the people. It has been steadily growing in power and influence ever since the Republican party began to increase the morality of the people. It has been steadily growing in power and influence ever since the Republican party began to increase the religion of the people. It has been steadily growing in power and influence ever since the Republican party began to increase the civilization of the people. It has been steadily growing in power and influence ever since the Republican party began to increase the enlightenment of the people. It has been steadily growing in power and influence ever since the Republican party began to increase the progress of the people. WOMEN'S SECOND-HAND BRIDE.

Great Advantages of the Trade to Poor Women and Young Girls.

[New York Sun.]

"It is astonishing how much money poor folks can save by buying things second-hand," said a Harlem horse keeper to a Sun reporter the other day. "Even my wife's small outfit of clothes when I hired her was bought second-hand. My chamber-maid was badly off for clothes when I hired her not long ago. Yesterday she came to me and begged an advance of seventy-five cents in order to buy a pair of shoes. 'You can get nothing worth having for that price,' said I. 'She'll take a couple of dollars, which you are welcome to.' But no 75 cents was all the advance she would take, and I gave it to her.

"In the evening she exhibited a pair of apparently new and really stylish and serviceable shoes, for which she said she had paid only 75 cents. 'They're second-hand, ma'am,' she explained, in reply to the surprise I expressed and the commendation I found that they were so, but so skillfully repaired and renovated as to be almost as good as new, while originally they must have been a fine street shoe, worth $2 or $3. Very often went on to inform me that she was in the habit of buying many articles of her wardrobe second-hand, and that, as a poor girl only knew how to buy with judgment in that way, she could keep herself respectable looking on a surprising small outlay. I am ready to believe her now, though I would never have thought it before.

"The reporter obtained the address of the second-hand shoe dealer with whom the lady's servant had dealt, and on the following day visited him at his shop in West Forty-eighth street. The dealer was a shrewd, good-humored little man, and he was also communicative. His shelves were covered with all styles of women's and girls' shoes, nicely repaired and refitted, ranging in price from 25 cents to $1.50, and by his work bench in the rear of the shop was a great pile of dilapidated shoes recently selected from the wagons of the collectors and awaiting renovation.

"I have been in the business about twenty-two years," said the dealer, in answer to numerous leading questions, "and, of course, I make it pay, else I'd be in something else, or I'll be in something else. Collectors get these scraps from all sorts of places. Some of those unfortunate men ones were like enough picked out of ash barrels and refuse heaps. Then they go from house to house and from tenement to tenement buying up what they can get. The very least of cast-off shoes won't bring more than a few cents, while there's many fair to middling ones can be had for the asking, and the owner is only too glad to get them out of sight. Then, for a small advance on what the collectors paid, I get the pick of their loads, and I neither know nor care what's done with my leavings. But then I don't leave many out of a fair to decent wagon load, and just me tell you that it's all fired mean, busted out pair of ladies' shoes that I can't make something attractive looking out of, especially to a thin purse. With a lot of tone upon the great Edmunds theme."

The dealer took down a pair of nearly meshed, well polished to be of substantial and genteel build. They so labelled 'Counts,' as you see, and that sort of shoe I always have a steady demand for, chiefly from poor servant girls and young workwomen. Well, that pair cost the collector 12 cents, and I gave him 75 for 'em. A fair profit, as you see. Well, I should say so, or what am I here for? Come, take a look at these 'black cat' kid slippers. This is the second time they've come back to me, worn and repaired as you see, and I may sell 'em over and over again, at 50 cents a pop, and I never bought 'em back for more than 15, either.

The House of William Penn.

[New York Post.]

A point of interest to the antiquary is Pennsbury manor, the spot where stood the mansion erected and occupied by William Penn. This historical spot is at the distance of six miles from Tacony, up the Delaware. The ingress house was of brick, and might possibly have been presented till now, had not a neglected water tank on the roof helped by its leakage the process of decay. The only vestiges of the building are found in the old bricks which pave the cellar floor of the present farm house and in a piece of carving from the woodwork of the ancient door frame of the demolished mansion. This, with a bust of Penn, carried out unskillfully by some unknown hand from the wood of one of the Cheery trees which Penn brought from England, is shown by the owner point of the premises.

Mr. W. Buck, visiting the place, noted the fact that nine guarded cherry trees were then standing as the remains of Penn's cherry hedge along the lane, and Mr. Buck then estimated them to be 170 years old.

A Visionary Enterprise.

[Detroit Free Press.]

Four miles back from the coast of southern New Jersey are the ruins of the deserted village of Allaire. The place was the Utopian dream of James P. Allaire, a wealthy visionary, who built it about 1810, embodying various reformatory and socialistic ideas. He intended that it should be a manufacturing center, with stores where the inhabitants could buy at low prices, and with schools for the higher education of all the children. The enterprise was a quick and total failure. The walls of the factories are tumbled down and overgrown, and a cracked bell lies at the foot of the steeple from which it fell years ago.

Col. Burnaby's Retort.

[Chicago Inter-Ocean.]

The late Col. Fred Burnaby prided himself on his descent from Edward I, and was reminded that monarch was gray and white, would say. "No doubt, but I would sooner be descended from those who dared oppress the people than to belong to the people who are cowardly enough to submit to oppression."

Rule for Book-Buyers.

[Lowell Courier.]

"Take care," says The Book Buyer, "to read what you buy, and to buy only what you read." The advice, if followed, would make book buying a very simple matter in most cases.

The Arrest of Byron W. Field.

[Philadelphia News.]

I saw an account the other day of the great ban put in London to celebrate the twenty seventh anniversary of the flying of the first Atlantic cable," said an Secret Service Agent John Jenks, as I sat a reporter, "and it brought up a curious recollection.

"You would hardly believe that I once arrested Cyrus W. Field as a counterfeiter, would you? Well, it is a fact. In the summer of 1857 I was crossing on one of the Camden ferryboats, when my attention was attracted by a young man carrying a hand satchel. An officer on the boat had given me a hint that he thought the young man a counterfeiter, and I began to think so myself when the man and I discovered that we were both looking at a very suspicious jingle coming from the bag. These were the palmy days of counterfeiting, and there was lots of the bogus rum about.

"I went up to the young man, and, tapping him on the shoulder, said 'Please open that bag and let me look in.' 'There is no objection to that,' was the reply; 'but who do you think I am, and who are you?' 'Well,' said I, 'I am a government officer, and I think you have something in that bag which is unlawful.' 'What's that?' he asked. 'Counterfeit money,' said I, looking him straight in the eye.

"'Well,' answered the young man, 'I'll show you that you are mistaken,' and opening the bag he displayed several sections of twisted wire. 'My name is Byron W. Field,' he said, 'and I've just come from Washington. I am now going to New York. This wire is a sample of the ocean cable, which I have been showing to Washington.'

"He never got the least bit angry, but smiled again and seemed to take the whole thing as a joke. I often wondered whether he remembered the incident."

To Gratify His Wife.

A Good Reason For Happiness.

"For many years I had suffered from a complaint which the physicians call Chronic. I had employed some of the most noted doctors with out obtaining any permanent relief, and for a long time my case was regarded as hopeless. At last, when the circumstances said I must die, finally my wife induced me to try a bottle of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, which she had somewhere heard of or seen advertised. It almost instantly gave me relief, and slowly but gradually her thoughtful kindness in procuring a bottle of it brought me back to health and strength. I feel that I owe my life to Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, and I am willing that my name should be used in its behalf. I am now in perfect health, and there is no reason why I should not live to the extreme limit of human life. I have recommended Favorite Remedy to others whom I knew to have suffered from kidney and liver complaints, and I assure the public that the cures were effected. I am willing to make a more public statement if necessary."—Washington Monroe, Caldwell, N. Y.

Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is a positive and permanent cure for Kidney and Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Piles, Blood Disease and Debility. Price $1.00. Sold by druggists. Send for free book giving full directions.

The Art of Getting Vigorous

Is comprised in one very simple piece of advice, improve digestion. No elaborate system of dietetics is needed. If you lack vigor, use nature's loyally that pleasant promoter of it, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. If you take this tonic, and do not commit any excesses, there is no reason why you should not gain in strength, appetite and weight. Thousands of dyspeptics are to day handling a found item for years of vigorous health with this sound and thorough renovator of a dilapidated digestion and failing remedy. Dyspepsia is eradicated by it, and the constitution fortified against disorders to which, if it were exposed, it must surely succumb. Malarial fever, for which medicine, moreover, the kidneys and bladder are auxiliaries, and their various symptoms disappear when it is used with persistency, but abandoned after a brief and irregular trial.

There is fair weather all over the country now—ponds fair weather.

No Mystery About It.

There is no mystery connected about the compounding of Brown's Iron Bitters. It is a simple tonic, and as such is only one of a class to take it with the object of improving the health or of curing it. It gives vigor to the feeble, life to the debilitated, and health to the dyspeptic. You need not fear to give it to the most delicate child. Mrs. Emma Williams, of Starkweather, Miss., says: "I relieved my daughter of dyspepsia, and myself of general debility."

One of nature's pranks now is the getting ripe of crop from not ripen until the cucumber crop is gone.

They Will Surely Find You

Ely's Cream Balm is the best remedy for cold in the head. Sufficient for cold, catarrh. Price fifty cents.
